MAKING A WILL WITH GOWLINGS IS SIMPLE, QUICK AND EASY

Every adult should consider making a Will to reflect their wishes. Couples may assume that their estate would pass to each other, without the need for a Will.

This is not necessarily so and a Will should be made to avoid disappointment. Also there are certain events in our lives when there are changes in family and circumstances, eg marriage, divorce or separation and it is essential to consider making a Will.

The Will appoints Executors, who are the people that you have named and entrusted with carrying out your wishes.

This is an important part of the Will. Also there may be specific gifts that you would want to make provision for and the Will also enables legacies to be given as well as charitable donations.

Also, a Will can specify funeral arrangements and other arrangements, ie the legal responsibility of a child and guardians can be named in the Will or for the care of pets.

Writing a Will gives you the opportunity to think realistically about the future and making a positive decision about things and people who you wish to benefit.
